MRS. HALL UNLIKELY TO FACE GRAND JURY

Mott Believes It Best to Refuse Request of Widow of Slain Rector.

WILL WARN SERVANTS

Women, Believed to Know Much About Case, to Be Forced to Talk.

CROWDS AT MURDER SPOT

Girls and Aged Women in Majority—Pictures of Apple Tree Sell at 50 Cts.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 5.—The chief effect of the announcement that Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the Rev. Edward V. Hall, the murdered minister of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, is to demand the right to be heard before the Somerset Grand Jury has been to clarify the situation and make it obvious that Special Deputy Attorney-General Mott, in charge of the case, will not permit her to testify.
On the other hand Mr. Mott is to call virtually every one who has been examined in the long drawn out inquiry conducted by Prosecutors Stricker and Beekman before Mr. Mott's entrance into the case, and in preparation for this Mr. Mott will re-examine several of these witnesses again this week. It is probable that Barbara Tough and Louise Gelat, servants in the Hall home, will be called for examination to-morrow, when Mr. Mott is expected to come to New Brunswick.

The authorities are decidedly of the opinion that the Hall servants know a great deal more than they have told and that the time for handling them with gloves has passed. Consequently Louise and Barbara are likely to have a somewhat difficult time of it, and it may be more than inferred to these two that withholding information in a case such as this borders on acting as an accessory to a major crime.

Long Grind by Grand Jury.
Just when Mr. Mott is to confer with the foreman of the Grand Jury is not clear, nor is the reason for such a move explained. If, as is said, the Grand Jury is to hear all the witnesses the proceedings before that body will last three or four days. Mr. Mott will take some action to-morrow, but the likelihood of the Grand Jury being called before the end of the week is slight. This would mean that indictments would not be found and no arrests made until next week.

The legal status of Mrs. Hall, in view of her proposed demand for a hearing before the Grand Jury, was made clear to-day by a prominent member of the New Brunswick bar, who has been active in some phases of the case and is thoroughly familiar not only with the law but with the standing of the various parties in this particular matter. He said:
"Neither Mrs. Hall nor any one else can demand the right to appear before the Grand Jury. That body does not have to consider such a demand. It can accede to it or it can ignore it as it sees fit. A person may request an opportunity to testify in a Grand Jury inquiry, but the prosecutor or the Grand Jury may feel that it is best not to receive that person's testimony."
"A grand jury is not a whitewashing body. It is not organized to establish innocence but to receive evidence that will lead to an indictment being found or will not lead to an indictment. Its efforts are positive, not negative. It is for the defendant to establish innocence at a trial, not before a grand jury.

Forced to Waive Immunity.

"If a suspect is permitted to testify before a grand jury that person is warned that his or her testimony may be used against him or her. He or she is required, either orally or in writing, to waive immunity."
"Mrs. Hall's reported purpose to demand a hearing probably resulting from the instructions of the last several weeks will fail if it is decided that the Grand Jury does not wish to hear her testimony. On the other hand, she may be welcomed to the witness stand. It is for the Grand Jury to decide."
Jimmie Mills is ready and willing to go before the Grand Jury whenever that body convenes, he said today in an interview with a reporter for THE NEW YORK HERALD, who dropped in to see him in his kitchen. Except when Jimmie goes to bed the kitchen seems to be his favorite and only spot in the little house on Carman street. He passed about an hour discussing Mrs. Hall's statement that she would demand that the Grand Jury hear her story whenever the body meets.

"You know, as I said, the first thing they should have done was to fire all of both families into the coop until they had found out what they wanted to know about the whole blamed thing," Jimmie said seriously. "Yes, sir-ee, that's what they should have done, but many a time I was going on this I know nothing about. Well, they'll call on us all this week for the Grand Jury and I'll go. They got an alibi for me, and several persons were sitting on the stoop here that night. I have nothing to hide and I'll tell them all I know."

Last Talk With Rector.

It became known this afternoon for the first time that Mills saw Hall as late as after 6 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, when the rector made visits to the Sunday school and remained there for about fifteen minutes. He said:

"The very last words that man said to me was about some paint which was to have come for me to paint the church door. I had been working around and cleaning up and Hall said to me: 'That's a good job, Jimmie.' Then he asked me about the paint that Bartholomew was to have sent. He went away from the church toward his home about ten after six, and that's the last I saw of him alive."

"The paint arrived later and one of Bartholomew's men must have left it in the vestibule, for it was there a couple of days later when I got time to go to the church. I was too busy after Thursday night to go to the church so I didn't know about it."

Jimmie was busy reading the story in the New York Herald this afternoon and read it aloud, making comments here and there when something struck him favorably.
"You know they had a photograph of my wife in the paper the other day that was the best one I ever seen since the case started. It looked exactly like my wife, and it was sure a good one, the only one they ever used that looked exactly like her."

And he rummaged among a pile of papers and found the photograph that was printed exclusively in THE NEW YORK HERALD about ten days ago.
"That's my wife all over again," he said proudly as he looked at the newspaper clipping showing the face of his slain wife.

Then Jimmie talked of his visit to the old Phillips farm last week, and expressed his opinion of the thousands of curiosity seekers who have stripped the crabapple tree to the ground and dug up the roots. It was suggested that he take a ride out to view the vast crowd of persons who came here to-day, and he demurred, saying:
"Gee! I'd attract more attention there than the Salvation Army."

Jimmie Mills is All Alone.

He spent to-day looking after the fires in the Lord Sterling School and the church. He was all alone, Danny having gone to visit some relatives and Charlotte being in Paterson. As far as Charlotte is concerned, Jimmie might as well have no daughter at all, he says, for she is rarely at home and then for but a few minutes. His constant companion is little 12-year-old Danny, and the strange pair sit by the hour in the kitchen, which is the main room of the house.
Jimmie said again that he is positive about his remarks to the effect that when he called at the Hall home the afternoon the bodies were found Mrs. Hall was composed and showed no signs of extreme grief.

"She was as calm as you are now," he said. "And there was no sign that she had even been crying. As for me, I was in bad shape and had to sit down before I could say anything. I was all in. The shock of the whole thing had about knocked me out, and I had been worrying over my wife's disappearance ever since Thursday night, when she didn't come home."
One of the photographers spoke to

Jimmie this afternoon and asked him why he had never had a photograph taken in which he was smiling and Jimmie said sadly:

"Holy gee, you wouldn't do much smiling if you had the things happen to you I did, would you? I'm getting tired of this photographing and all this reporter stuff anyway. I've had enough shots made at me by cameras who kill an army if they were shootin' bullets."

Mills as Election Worker.

To-morrow night Jimmie will get to bed early, for on Tuesday he officiates in the Lord Sterling School, of which he is the janitor, as an election worker and will be on the job from 6 in the morning through most of Tuesday night. There are few things that Jimmie hasn't done or tried, from football to carpentering, and he knows quite a bit about the curing of tobacco and the distilling of liquor. On any subject Jimmie is a great conversationalist and he is quite positive about his statements.

THE NEW YORK HERALD reporter suggested that Jimmie had had much notoriety, and as they stood in front of the Carman street house at least a dozen automobiles drove slowly by and the occupants gazed at the little wooden house and then at Jimmie.

"Look at those fools," Jimmie said. "What the devil can they see in looking at a few old weather beaten boards on the front of the house? Only yesterday a dozen persons who came from New York and who apparently had money and education stopped at the church while I was cleaning up and asked me a lot of foolish questions. They wanted to go through the church, but I have no authority for anything like that. They may as well go to the movies, Jimmie," he was asked, and said laughingly:

"Wouldn't that be a scream! Jimmie Mills in a five rector, he scared the crows out of the cornfield. No, I guess I'll stick to this place here. I haven't the stuff to be a movie actor."

WEST END AVENUE FIRE ENDANGERS SEVERAL

Children and Nurse Rescued From Apartment House.

Fire last night in the dumbwaiter shaft of the five story apartment house at 520 West End avenue, corner of Eighty-fifth street, caused considerable excitement among the seven families that occupy the building. All were got out safely, including the two small children of John Vance Hewitt from the top floor, but they had to grope their way through a smoke filled hallway to the street.

The fire was discovered by Herbert K. Stroud, who lives on the ground floor and who saw smoke coming through the floor. He and his wife went through the house, notifying the other tenants, and all of them got out when it was learned that Mr. Hewitt's maid and his children still were in the Hewitt apartment. Stroud then went upstairs and carried the children out of the house. The fire confined the flames to the shaft, the first floor hallway and the fifth floor, where it mushroomed on its way to the roof.

MOONSHINERS USING ODOR TO KILL ODOR

Prohibition Officers Have New Force to Combat.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 5.—Prohibition officers who search the wooded hills for moonshiners declared to-night that these liquor makers have been employing skunks to defeat the ends of justice.
"We used to be able to smell the stills," explained Officers Bee and Summers, who arrived from Mineral Wells, where they made an arrest, yesterday. "But that was before the moonshiners began using polecats."
The officers reported that they destroyed a distillery on the farm of George Nickles, near Mineral Springs, and incidentally broke up a skunk kennel.

BEAR PREFERS FINGER TO YOUTH'S POPCORN

Central Park Animal Bites Hand Feeding It.

Benjamin Diner, 13, of 306 Delancy street, stood in front of the polar bear cage in the Central Park menagerie yesterday afternoon and fed one of the bears popcorn from the palm of his hand.
The bear ate the corn and then began to eat one of the boy's fingers. He found this much more to his liking than the popcorn. It was some moments before the keepers were able to part the bear's jaws. The boy was sent to Bellevue Hospital. Surgeons said he had a badly lacerated finger.

A Boon to Humanity The Coward Shoe

More than fifty years ago, James S. Coward practical custom shoe maker, conceived the principle behind the Coward Shoe. He saw and understood the sufferings of thousands burdened by foot troubles who were forced to wear unnatural, ill-fitting shoes.

So Coward Shoes were built to follow the normal lines of the foot—to fit naturally and afford complete foot-ease. Only the softest seasoned leathers were used in Cowards, and a style of shoe was made for different types of feet, and to remedy the common foot ailments. Today there are listed among Cowards such well-known shoes as the "Arch Support," "Bunion," "Orthopedic," "Combination," "Wide Top" and "Good Sense."

Through the years these famous shoes have contributed much to human happiness and comfort. The present demand for Cowards exceeds even the fondest earlier predictions of their originator who is still actively engaged superintending their construction and sale. Truly can it be said that Coward shoes are — "A Boon to Suffering Humanity."

Two Bosses

are trying to use a judge as a pawn in their play for patronage.
One of them has a grudge to satisfy.
For that he is using the Democratic Party to attack the integrity of the courts.
The other has a brother to provide for.
For this he is abandoning principle.
For this he is jeopardizing the success of every Republican candidate for whom he did not obtain Democratic endorsement, as he did for his brother.
One of those he has sacrificed is the Republican candidate for Surrogate.
Every vote for him is a vote to bind the bosses' bargain and elect Murphy's candidate.
In Surrogate Cohalan the people have a fair, impartial and upright judge. He has served their interests faithfully for fourteen years. They would like to keep him on the job.
But the grudge and the brother stand in the way.
Because the Surrogate's Court safeguards the property of widows and orphans it is vital to keep it out of the clutches of the bosses.
The real contest lies between the Murphy candidate and Surrogate Cohalan, running independently on his excellent record.
